Weather woes

This has not been the best of years for North Carolina agriculture and farmers. First, an Easter weekend freeze severely damaged the apple and peach crops, and now nearly three-fourths of the state is experiencing severe or extreme drought, which is wreaking havoc with most other commodities.

Farmers almost always find themselves at the mercy of Mother Nature. Irrigation can help, but with extended dry periods like we've had this summer, those resources often become limited or dry up altogether. Many communities across the state have imposed water restrictions because of the severity of the situation.

Nearly every commodity and every region of the state is suffering under these drought conditions. As of mid-August, 74 percent of the state's soil moisture levels rated short or very short. Simply put, we need rain; and even then it may be too late for a number of crops.

I am particularly worried about livestock and dairy producers this fall and winter. I've talked to many growers and quite a few have already started feeding animals hay and other supplemental feeds because pastures and fields have dried up or been extremely short due to the lack of rain. Unfortunately, that's like robbing Peter to pay Paul, and I know this will catch up to growers this winter or maybe even earlier.

I understand from my counterparts in other Southeastern states that hay supplies are limited in the entire region, meaning it will be

N.C. Mountain State Fair set for Sept. 7-16

Get ready for 'Full Throttle Fun' in the mountains!

Time to mark your calendars and buy tickets to the 2007 N.C. Mountain State Fair coming to the WNC Ag Center in Fletcher Sept. 7-16. "Full Throttle Fun" will be the theme for the 14th annual fair, and organizers have lined up more music, more fun and lots of new sights for this year's fair.

"We're putting the final touches on preparations, and I'm excited about the additions we are bringing to the 2007 fair," said Fair Manager Matt Buchanan. "We'll have almost non-stop music in the Hospitality Tent, new grounds entertainment including a circus, a magic act centered around agriculture and a family acrobatic team. We're also bringing back the Sandy Feat sand sculpture artists who will create a 32-ton piece of sand art during the fair."

Premium entertainment concerts this year include Hotel California (an Eagles tribute band) on Monday, Sept. 10; Jason Michael Carroll on Tuesday, Sept. 11; Mark Wills on Ingles Day, Wednesday, Sept. 12; David Phelps on Thursday, Sept. 13; and Cherryholmes on Sunday, Sept. 16. Seats for all the premium shows are just $5 plus gate admission.

The livestock shows, such as this Brahman show, are popular features at the N.C. Mountain State Fair. Cattle, sheep, goats, hogs, llamas, rabbits and poultry are among the livestock shown and displayed at the Fair.

Discount advance tickets are available at Western N.C. Ingles stores through Thursday, Sept. 6, and also at the WNC Ag Center and the WNC Farmers Market. The fair will again celebrate Ingles Day on Wednesday, Sept. 12, where a contribution of five cans of Laura Lynn brand canned food from Ingles can be exchanged for a free fair admission. All food collected will be donated to the MANNA Food Bank serving Western North Carolina.

A new event for the Mountain State Fair will allow high school football fans to enjoy their games then come to the fair for some late-night entertainment. Full Throttle Frenzy will take place on the second Friday of the fair only, Sept. 14, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Special admission pricing of $15 will cover gate admission and unlimited rides from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. only. Regular gate admission of $5 will still be available to those less interested in carnival rides.

"We'll have a special free outdoor rock concert in the open ring as part of Full Throttle Frenzy starting at 10 p.m. that will last until about midnight, and of course the Midway will

Farmers encouraged to have corn tested for aflatoxin

Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler recently announced collection sites where farmers may leave corn samples for aflatoxin testing by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Aflatoxin is a byproduct of the mold Aspergillus flavus. It can be harmful to both humans and livestock. “We encourage farmers to have their corn tested to avoid unnecessary contamination of feeds and food,” Troxler said.

Testing is free to farmers and will be conducted at the Constable Laboratory, 4000 Reedy Creek Road in Raleigh. Farmers who are unable to deliver the required 5- to 10-pound sample of shelled corn to the lab may take samples to one of the following research stations:

- Border Belt Tobacco Research Station, 86 Border

Belt Drive, Whiteville, (910) 648-4703; Ty Marshall, superintendent.

- Peanut Belt Tobacco Research Station, 112 Research Station Lane, Lewiston-Woodville, (252) 348-2213; Tommy Corbett, superintendent. Station contact: Margaret Pierce.
- Tidewater Research Station, 207 Research Station Road, Plymouth, (252) 793-4118; Jewell Tetterton, interim superintendent.
- Lower Coastal Plain Tobacco/Cunningham Research Station, 200 Cunningham Road, Kinston, (252) 527-3579; Phillip Winslow, superintendent.
- Piedmont Research Station, 8350 Sherrills Ford Road, Salisbury, (704) 278-2624; Joe K. Hampton, superintendent.

- Mountain Horticultural Crops Research Station, 74 Research Drive, Fletcher, (828) 684-7197; Denny Thompson, superintendent.

Samples may be mailed directly to the lab at the following address:

NCDA&CS
Food and Drug Protection Division
1070 Mail Service Center
Raleigh, NC 27699-1070

Forms and bags needed for submitting samples will be available at collection sites. For additional information about the aflatoxin testing program, contact Jennifer Godwin or Staci Parker at the NCDA&CS Food and Drug Protection Division, (919) 733-7366.

NCDA&CS hosts congressional staffs for AgFirst event

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services recently hosted members of North Carolina’s congressional delegation and their staff for a session on food safety. The department highlighted some of the ways it works to ensure a safe food supply, including a recent recall of Castleberry Foods brand of chili, beef stew, corned beef hash and flavors of canned dog food.

Reps. Bob Etheridge and Walter B. Jones both attended the event.

Production of many North Carolina crops lower than a year ago

Production of corn, hay, apples, peaches, grapes and soybeans is down in North Carolina, and the weather is to blame. “It’s quickly turning into a bad year for many North Carolina crops,” Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler said in response to the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s August crop production report.

“The damage caused by the Easter freeze is being magnified by the extreme heat and drought. And if we don’t get some rain soon, the situation is only going to get worse.”

This year’s corn crop was expected to be the largest in decades. Boosted by good prices and nationwide interest in ethanol production, N.C. farmers planted 1.1 million acres of corn. But the lack of rain has stunted growth, and extreme temperatures are wilting plants. Corn yields in the state are forecast at 94 bushels per acre, a drop of 38 bushels per acre from last year. This year’s yield is the lowest since 2002.

Total N.C. corn production is down 1 percent from a year ago, but only because so much more corn was planted this year, Troxler said.

Another crop of concern is hay. Production is estimated at 1.4 million tons, 15 percent less than last year. Yield is forecast at 2 tons per acre, compared with 2.4 tons per acre in 2006. The hay yield is also the lowest since 2002.

“If this drought keeps up, farmers won’t have enough hay to feed livestock this winter,” Troxler said. “They’re going to face a tough decision of paying high costs to bring in hay from other states or selling some of their animals early. Some farmers are already doing that.”

North Carolina’s apple, peach and grape crops were already in bad shape because of the freeze. Apple production is forecast at 50 million pounds this year, compared with 173 million pounds a year ago.

Peach production is estimated at 1,000 tons, down 82 percent from last year. Grape production is forecast at 3,500 tons, a 24 percent drop from last year.

The apple and peach crops are the smallest since 1955, according to USDA data.

One crop that does not appear to have been significantly hurt by the weather is tobacco. Production in the state is estimated at 368 million pounds, an 11 percent increase over last year.

The USDA crop production report is based on surveys of farmers completed on Aug. 1. Additional reports will be issued in September, October and November. The full report is available at www.nass.usda.gov/.

Mtn. State Fair

stay open until 1 a.m.,” Buchanan said.

Buildings and exhibit halls will close at 10 p.m., but food vendors, rides, games and music will continue into Saturday morning. The N.C. Highway Patrol will continue to direct traffic during the expanded hours, and free shuttle service from overflow parking areas will continue as well.

Throughout the 10-day run of the Fair, kids of all ages will enjoy Agricadabra, an agricultural-themed magic show that makes its debut at the fair and features balloon art and magic. The show uses facts about N.C. agriculture to educate and entertain kids of all ages.

During the show, children can help make a “monkey in the tree” balloon, a 10-balloon creation that measures more than six feet tall that one lucky child will have the chance to take home. The show will be held daily at the north end of the G2 commercial tent.

Another featured attraction is the Farm Adventure exhibit, which lets visitors see nature’s nurturing side as animal mothers interact with their young. Visitors can expect to see pigs, ducks, goats, sheep, chickens, turkeys, rabbits and even miniature donkeys.

North Carolina agricultural facts and information will be on display and kids can participate in various hands-on activities. The Farm Adventure tent will be located on Corporate Way, close to Entrance B.

A complete daily schedule, a breakdown of the various competitions, maps and more activities are available at www.mountainfair.org. Additional information is available by calling the fairgrounds at (828) 697-1414.

The Mountain State Fair offers fun for all ages, including thrilling Midway rides, free grounds entertainment, agricultural exhibits and competitions and plenty of delicious food. Come see for yourself Sept. 7-16.

AgroTips

Remember to check for nematode problems during harvest.

Plant-parasitic nematodes are common in all field crop soils and often lower yields without being very apparent. Fall is an excellent time to find out if nematode populations are high and, if so, to develop a plan to manage them. When the weather is good for harvest, it is also good for collecting soil samples for nematode assay.

Nematode populations peak at the end of the growing season so samples assayed at this time provide an accurate description of potential hazards. If you submit samples in the fall, you will have time to plan a management strategy.

If you noticed localized areas of poor growth during the growing season, it is a good idea to collect separate soil samples from good and poor areas. Submit two samples from each of these areas-one for nematode assay and one for soil fertility. Comparison of results from good and poor areas and from nematode assays and soil tests is helpful in pinpointing a problem.

N.C. State Fair coming soon; advance tickets on sale now

Buy early and save money on admission and ride tickets

People interested in going to the 2007 N.C. State Fair can save money on admission and ride tickets by buying them in advance. Discounted tickets will be on sale online Sept. 4-Oct. 11.

Fairgoers buying advance tickets will save $2 per adult admission ticket and $8 per ride sheet. Advance admission tickets will cost $5 for adults and $1 for children ages 6-12. Adult admission tickets for groups of 40 or more will cost $4.75. A coupon that can be redeemed at the State Fair for a sheet of 24 ride tickets will cost $10 in advance.

Advance tickets can be purchased online with a debit or credit card.

Beginning Sept. 27, advance tickets also will be sold at the Agriculture Building in downtown Raleigh, the State Fairgrounds and six malls: Triangle Town Center in Raleigh, Northgate Mall and The Streets at Southpoint in Durham, Four Seasons Town Centre in Greensboro, Burlington Square Mall and Wilson Mall. Tickets will be sold at the State Farmers Market in Raleigh Sept. 29-30 and Oct. 6-7. All locations will accept cash, debit and credit cards except Wilson Mall and the Farmers Market, which will accept cash only.

The 2007 State Fair will offer Seriously Twisted Fun, including plenty of family favorites such as livestock shows, free grounds entertainment, educational exhibits, rides and food. The State Fair runs Oct. 12-21.

Dates and times of ticket sales vary among locations. Visit the State Fair Web site, www.ncstatefair.org, for more.

Raleigh-based ETix will again provide online tickets that can be printed at home. Each ticket will have a bar code to be scanned at the gate. If fairgoers lose their ticket prior to attending the fair, they can reprint their tickets at home using a confirmation number that will be e-mailed to them. Once a bar code has been scanned at the gate, the ticket will be invalid.

Internet users can access ride sheets by printing out a coupon and redeeming it at the Fair.

ETix will charge a convenience fee ranging from 5 to 15 percent depending on the type of ticket.

“With online sales, fairgoers can get their tickets immediately in the comfort of their own home,” said Mike Pleasant, State Fair assistant manager. “Shoppers can purchase ride, admission and concert tickets using an online shopping cart to make the process easier.”

Concert tickets also will go on sale Sept. 4 at 8 a.m. and can only be purchased at the State Fair Web site. The State Fair runs Oct. 12-21 at the State Fairgrounds.

Dorton Arena concert lineup announced for State Fair

The 2007 N.C. State Fair will showcase an exciting blend of Southern flavor, as Dorton Arena hosts TV cooking personality Paula Deen, contemporary Christian acts, an “American Idol” champ, country stars and three entertainers that call North Carolina home.

“We are proud once again to host entertainers who are returning to their home state,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “Kellie Pickler, Daughtry and Anthony Hamilton all have roots in our state, and I am looking forward to the diverse entertainment they and the other performers will bring to the State Fair.”

Christian band MercyMe, known for such hits as “I Can Only Imagine” and “So Long Self,” will kick off the series Friday, Oct. 12, followed by country songbird Sara Evans on Oct. 13. Soulful crooner and 2003 “American Idol” champion Ruben Studdard will take the stage Oct. 14, followed by Josh Turner on Oct. 15. Turner is known for such hit country singles as “Your Man” and “Would You Go With Me.”

Albemarle native Kellie Pickler will perform hits from her debut album Oct. 16. Paula Deen, of Food Network fame, will cook up an evening of delicious food and down-home humor Oct. 17. R&B star and Charlotte native Anthony Hamilton will follow on Oct. 18 with hits from his album, “Ain’t Nobody Worryin’.” Christian music legend Steven Curtis Chapman will perform a selection of hits from his 20-year career Oct. 19.

Christian rock band Day of Fire will open for fellow rockers Daughtry on Oct. 20. Daughtry will perform such hits as “It’s Not Over” and “Home.” Country star Trace Adkins, known for such hits as “Honky Tonk Badonkadonk,” “Ladies Love Country Boys” and “Every Light in the House,” will wrap up the series on Oct. 21.

Tickets can only be purchased online at www.ncstatefair.org, and will go on sale Tuesday, Sept. 4 at 8 a.m. Prices will range from $5 to $20. If any tickets remain when the Fair starts, they may be purchased from the box office at the fairgrounds. Fair admission is required for all concerts. All shows will begin at 7:30 p.m. and doors open at 6:30 p.m.

NCDA&CS advises to resist urge to fertilize during drought

In most years, August, September and October are prime months for fertilizing cool-season grasses, including hay and pasture crops. This year, however, the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services’ Agronomic Division is cautioning people to delay fertilization until drought conditions ease up significantly.

Applying fertilizer could not only be a waste of time and money, it could also be dangerous if grass is to be used in livestock production, warn NCDA&CS regional agronomists David Dycus and Bill Yarborough. “Nitrate poisoning of livestock is a real concern,” said Dycus.

Although homeowners do not need to worry about nitrate poisoning, they should also avoid fertilizing their lawns under drought conditions.

“Grasses, like fescue and orchardgrass, that are dormant during the summer will be slow to begin fall growth without sufficient moisture,” said Yarborough. “It is tempting to want to add fertilizer to hasten growth, but during drought conditions, fertilization will not produce a favorable growth response.

“In addition, fertilization can cause unusually high levels of nitrates to accumulate in forage crops,” Yarborough said. “High levels of nitrates can be fatal to cattle.”

To keep track of the drought status in your area, visit www.ncdrought.org. Currently, nearly three-fourths of the state is under severe or extreme drought.

“It will rain eventually, but rain doesn’t necessarily mean an end to the drought,” Dycus said. “Be aware that plants will still be under stress until moisture levels in the soil profile increase enough to meet daily crop needs.”

The agronomists stress that the most important precaution is to refrain from fertilizing while drought conditions continue. In addition, livestock owners should have all forages tested for nitrate levels. This free test is available from the NCDA&CS Food and Drug Protection Division. For information, call (919) 733-7366.

It is important that farmers report hay shortages to their local Cooperative Extension and U.S. Farm Service Agency offices. Accurate records of shortages will be needed to determine whether drought conditions constitute a disaster situation. Contact Cooperative Extension at www.ces.ncsu.edu and FSA at www.fsa.usda.gov.

The NCDA&CS Agronomic Division has 13 regional agronomists who give advice on crop nutrient issues. Visit www.ncagr.com/agronomi/rahome.htm or call the division office at (919) 733-2655 to contact the agronomist assigned to your county.
